New York, NY (August 14, 2019) – Located just 90 minutes from Shanghai via high-speed train, Nanjing is a must-visit city for those seeking to immerse themselves in China’s fascinating past while enjoying modern luxuries. Travelers considering a visit before the end of the year should be sure not to miss these seasonal highlights:

FOR A LIMITED TIME, HAIRY CRAB IS ON THE MENU

September marks the beginning of hairy crab season, one of the highlights of Nanjing’s culinary calendar. These lake harvested delicacies, known for their rich golden roe, are named for their furry claws that resemble mittens and only available for a few months each year. Gucheng Lake in Nanjing’s southern suburbs breeds some of the tastiest hairy crabs in China, but they can be found on menus of hotels and restaurants throughout Nanjing. Nanjingers enjoy them steamed, cracking open the shells and dipping the meat in vinegar.

CELEBRATE FALL WITH LEAF PEEPING, NANJING STYLE

Autumn foliage is relatively short and comes a bit later in eastern China than in North America, but those visiting Nanjing from late November to mid-December are in for a treat. Vibrant red maple leaves color the landscape, especially in scenic areas like Purple Mountain, where travelers can also visit historical sites like the Mausoleum of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the father of the Republic of China, and the Xiaoling Tomb of the Ming Dynasty, a 600 year-old UNESCO World Heritage Site guarded by four life-sized pairs of stone warriors and 12 pairs of mythical creatures. Approximately 14 miles northeast of Nanjing’s city center lies Qixia Mountain, one of China’s top spots for viewing fall foliage, and a fascinating spot for seeing Buddhist culture up close at Qixia Temple, Sierra Pagoda, and Thousand Buddhas Cliff.
